

Brian Tuskan
Senior Director
Microsoft Global Security

As Senior Director of Microsoft Global Security, Brian Tuskan focuses on strategic development of global teams, process, programs and initiatives. He oversees physical security / life-safety, field operations services for global campuses, operational incident management, emergency response plan execution, as well as special event security for Global Corporate Sales & Marketing / Corporate Business Groups. He directs physical security technology design, development, and integration for the Corporate Enterprise; Global Security Operations Center technology development and life-cycle management; and Corporate Investigations / Threat Management / Workplace Violence Mitigation. He serves as Public Safety Liaison with executive staff and law enforcement. And he oversees development, incubation and demonstration of the use of Microsoft, and Microsoft Partner technologies in delivering comprehensive and cost-effective physical security solutions on a global scale.

He joined Microsoft in 2000 after serving eight years primarily as a major crimes detective with the Redmond (WA) Police Department, where he specialized in high-tech crime, computer intrusion, crimes against persons, narcotics and fraud investigations. Before joining the Redmond Police Department, he was an officer with the Honolulu Police Department for over four years, where he served as a patrol officer, a SWAT tactical team member in the Specialized Services Division (dealing with high-risk critical incident response and dignitary/executive protection). He also served as the public/private liaison with the Waikiki Business Association in the Office of Information & Complaint, D-6 Major's Office and the Mayor's office. Brian has a Criminal Justice degree from Wayland Baptist University.
